

THE GAZETTE.

MONDAY DECEMBER 3.

"NO MORE PASSES."

Roswell Miller, president and manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company, has gone to Europe, and just before he started, a member of the assembly from Milwaukee asked him what the company proposed to do about passes for the members. The answer given is reported to be "We don't propose to issue any."

The Senator says that from the past winter in which Mr. Miller exercised the office of the railway companies whose lines traverse this state have come to an understanding by pleading the interstate commerce act. And the same paper then adds: "There will doubtless be a howl all along the line when this decision becomes generally known, not so much on the part one hundred and thirty-three wise men who are to tinker the laws of the state, as on the friends, constituents, uncles, cousins, sons, nephews, nieces, acquaintances and strangers who have taken advantage of the privileges accorded legislators by railroads to travel all over the state."

It is possible that the railway companies may hold fast to the proposition laid down by Roswell Miller, but the companies have many times attempted to reform the pass business and always failed. There is nothing pernicious in the system of issuing passes to members of the legislature. The evil to be cured is only when the system is abused, and this has been abused constantly, and for this, there is no one to blame but the companies themselves. The loose system of granting passes is illustrated by one of the railway officials, in answer to the question as to what class of people received the passes:

"Bless you, everybody. Men who would afford to buy tickets without paying for them. The fact was that they got them as boys who couldn't afford to buy them. A great many impostors naturally took advantage of the situation and it wasn't easy to discriminate. We were bothered by a good deal of them. Most of them found out that they wanted to get home and some of them imagined that from one end of the state to the other for nothing, for the mere sake of allowing themselves to travel with the old folk. We finally shut down on them and then they began to get passes in a round-about way."

If the companies would learn to manage the pass business on practical common sense principles, they would have no trouble. And it is doubtful whether during the coming session the railways will be able to withstand the temptation to grant passes to their members. It is believed that when the legislature meets in session the railway companies feel self-reliant. When the legislature are in session, tampering with bills to cut down passenger rates, then the railway companies are apt to lose their courage and the passes are issued.

SCALES FALLING FROM THEIR EYES.

The blind are beginning to see—the blind partisans down south—who have been preaching for years that there was nothing good that could come out of the republican party. If there is any section of this country that should be profoundly grateful for the existence of the republican party and for the republican victory of last month, it is the south. Had it not been for the republican party, there would have been no slavery and wooden plows in the south to-day. There would have been no manufacturing activity, no industrial progress, no Birmingham, no modern Atlanta, no breaking up of the old customs of slavery times, and the democratic theory of cotton is king and slavery is right if cotton is king and it is allowed to prevail.

There are some people in the south who begin to see that republican victories have been triumphs for the southern states. The Charleston Globe, democratic, in making mention of something for which the people should be thankful, says:

"There is much to be thankful for in the fact that the newly elected president is a christian gentleman, and who is believed will pursue a fair and conciliatory policy towards every section of the common country over which he has been called to administer. While he may differ radically with citizens in various portions of the Union, and especially in the south, we all have reason to congratulate ourselves that he bears a reputation, where he is best known, of being a good man."

It is a long time that has no "turn." It is a queer tale that can't be turned. He who is arrogant and proud, to-day, may be dejected and humiliated to-morrow. As an illustration: General Atkins, of Asper, in due time received the following letter:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20, 1888.—You are hereby appointed in the county of Stephenson and state of Illinois, in accordance with the terms of the 17th section of the Revised Statute of the United States

To Mr. SMITH D. ATKINS, Representative, Stephenson county, Ill.

Public office was not a public trust in this case, and an old soldier and a faithful and efficient officer was bound to make room for a democrat. But the time came when it was most and proper for

General Atkins to write a letter which he did in the following language:

ATKINS MANSION, FREEPORT, Ill., Nov. 7, 1888.—You are hereby suspended from the office of president of the United States at Washington, D. C., in accordance with the terms of sections 133 to 140 of the revised statutes of the United States, this order to take effect on March 4, 1889.

SMITH D. ATKINS.

There is a saying that runs something like this, "He who laughs last, laughs best." Probably Mr. Cleveland remembers it, and clearly sees the point.

If General Harrison means what he says, he will administer the government as the law directs. The war with the oceans and catastrophes, will cease to be a living issue in the politics of the time. The solid north against the solid south will become a tradition, and our sixty millions will be knitted more firmly together than ever before. The fact was we have always found the republican party has been its sectionalism.—New York Herald.

The Herald is a blind partisan. What makes the south solid against the republican party? Because the republican party fought against slavery. What makes the south solid for the democracy? Because the democracy sympathized with the south and slavery. These are facts that are not beyond the vision of any ordinarily intelligent democrat. All the republican party asks of the south is that it shall protect a free ballot and guarantee a fair count. The south refuses to do this, and because the republican party demands that there shall be as fair an election in the south as in any state in the north, the democratic papers, north and south, call it sectionalism.

Secretary of State Tamm has a just cause to experience a feeling of elation over the magnificent plurality received of 23,374; but an additional feature of his great victory is that he has a majority of six over all opponents.

Majorities in these days of prohibitionists and labor parties are not easy things to get.—State Journal.

This is 2,303 more than General Harrison received, and is a larger plurality than ever before received by any candidate in Wisconsin. This is all the more significant when this fact is considered that some didn't want Captain Tamm's nomination would handicap the other candidates. Well, Secretary of State Tamm is to be heartily congratulated.

Here is a little bit of common sense coming from Worcester, Massachusetts: The Rev. W. H. Thomas of that city was asked by an audience from his pulpit that an "escaped nun" would lecture on certain evening. He declined by saying: "I am not in harmony with the un-Christian, un-American, discreditable assault upon the Roman Catholic church, now so popular as Boston. I am endeavoring to educate my people to higher abides and most desirous to read your notice."

The Indianapolis Sentinel, democratic says that "the democrats of Indiana are thoroughly aroused on the question of ballot reform. They demand radical action upon the subject from the new legislature." It adds, "and we think they will not be disappointed." This would indicate that the democrats of Indiana are becoming converted to the republican doctrine of an honest ballot. There would be more democratic presidents if the ballot reform was put in effect.

Chicago still keeps up its splendid record in doing justice to the dynamite socialists. Hronak has been found guilty, and sentenced to twelve years at Joliet. All these enemies to social order are foreigners, and when the verdict was announced, the crowd leaped forward and hounded the result. He seiled and said, "Ioh veretete." We hope he does. If he had understood that a little sooner he would have been better off.

TEN HOURS' IN A FLOODED MINE.

One Hundred and Fifty Men Rescued from a Perilous Situation.

EVANSTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—The mines of the Rock Hill Coal Company at Rock Hill, Pa., this county, became flooded Saturday morning soon after the miners had entered upon their work. There were 150 men in the mine at the time, and the rushing water swept them before it to the farther ends of the mines, where they were imprisoned for ten hours in water reaching to their chests. Their escape from the mouth of the mine was made by the oncoming tide, which had burst its way through the dam, sweeping every thing before it. The volume of water thus suddenly liberated covered an area of forty acres to a depth of five feet. Through excavations the surface of the mine was turned from the mines and after ten hours intense suffering the imprisoned miners were liberated. The company's loss is very great.

HE GETS TWELVE YEARS.

Hronak, the Chicago anarchist, will go to Joliet to join Neobe, Schwab and Fiedler.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—In the case of Hronak, the anarchist on trial for conspiring to kill Judges Gary and Grinnell and to murder Benfield, the arguments were all concluded Saturday afternoon. After Judge Collins charged the jury retired, but returned in about thirty minutes with a verdict finding Hronak guilty, and fixing his punishment at a term of twelve years in the penitentiary. A friend leaned over to tell Hronak the verdict, and said: "Ioh veretete." His face betrayed no evidence of disappointment or fear.

TO RESUME WORK.

The Adjourned Session of Congress Ready to Meet.

TO BE DEVOTED STRICTLY TO BUSINESS.

Some of the Measures to be Acted Upon—More Speculation About the Message—The Next Session Undoubtedly Republican.

THE FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Fiftyeth Congress will meet to-day at noon to begin its second and final session. It is expected that this will be one of the busiest sessions in the history of Congress. When Congress agreed to a recess less than two months ago there was untouched on the calendars of both houses a substantial list of legislation. It is not possible that all of this will be disposed of, as the discussion of the annual appropriation bills will occupy much of the time of the House and Senate between December 10 and March 4. It is not expected that much progress will be made during the coming week with the business of the session. In the Senate the unfinished business is the Finance Committee's substitute for the Mills tariff bill. When Congress adjourned last session, who was in charge of the bill, gave notice that when Congress should again assemble he would insist on the Senate devoting the entire time to the tariff question to the exclusion of all other business, until it had been disposed of. It was even understood that there would be no recess at Christmas time if the bill had not been disposed of. Conditions have changed since Congress adjourned, and although no policy has been formally discussed by the members of the ruling party in the Senate, it is considered possible that a further discussion, to give the Senate opportunity to consider other business. However, the tariff measure is the unfinished business on the calendar and will come up for consideration on Monday, and will be devoted to the President's message, and it is not unlikely that this will be the order of business for the remainder of the week.

The House is prevented by its own rules from taking up any of the unfinished business of last session for six days after the adjournment. With the exception of such as may have been made a special order for a particular day. There is no special order for the coming week. The Direct Tax bill does not, as has been stated, come up for consideration on Thursday. Last spring when the House was in dead-lock over this measure it was proposed to compromise by postponing its consideration to the second session. The Democratic caucus on April 11 last adopted a resolution to the effect that the bill be read a special order for Thursday, December 6, three days to be allowed for debate at that time. The Republicans, however, were so averse to their position, to say the least, that a vote, that the resolution was not introduced in the House. Mr. Oates (Ala.), who led the filibusters at the last session, is now quoted as saying that he will again resort to filibustering tactics to prevent the passage of the bill which in April had a clear majority of the House in favor of its passage.

It is probable that the District of Columbia Appropriation bill, which has been introduced by the Appropriation Committee, will be ready to present to Congress to-day or to-morrow. It may be taken up for immediate consideration. The Finance Committee, several pension bills and a large number of measures of interest to certain localities or sections, which will be urged for consideration.

THE MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The World's Washington special says it is understood that the President, in his message to Congress, will take back no jot of the tariff reform principles enunciated in his message of a year ago. His utterances, however, will be mainly confined to a restatement of his position and the arguments which have brought him to it. It will treat of the general interests of the country, reviewing the matters of the cabinet, the foreign policy of the Government will occupy the President's attention. He will refer to the fact that the conservative policy of the Administration is to keep the country out of broils or entanglements of any sort, while, at the same time, our honor and independence have been maintained abroad. The financial policy will be referred to as having aided the country over a dangerous period, where a panic might easily have been precipitated, owing to the accumulation of the surplus in the Treasury. The immigration question will be touched upon, and Congress will be urged to enact such legislation as will correct the existing abuses while enabling the benevolent immigrants to find a home in the vast public lands yet unsettled. The President points with pardonable pride to the fact that no Indian outbreak followed by serious consequences, has occurred since his inauguration. It has been the policy of the Administration to treat the Indians fairly, and Congress is urged to consider carefully the claims of all Indians now residing on public domain before opening up Indian lands to settlers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Washington Post which for a long time claimed a majority in the next House for the Democratic party, now admits that the Republicans will have the disputed Tenth district and at least one of the four districts in West Virginia, and that the roll of the House will bear the names of 166 Republicans and 139 Democrats—a Republican majority of 7.

SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND.

Inhabited by One Man, Twenty Thousand Sheep and Two Dogs.

Frank Morrison has kindly furnished a reporter with some very interesting facts concerning certain discoveries on the island of San Clemente, which lies off the coast from Laguna some twenty or thirty miles, says the Riverside (Cal.) Tribune. A party of gentlemen, among whom was Arthur Cheatham, of Santa Ana, visited the island by yacht from San Diego. Upon arriving they were met by Mr. Cheatham, the first thing that attracted special attention was a couple of dogs swimming out from shore to meet them, exhibiting at the same time unbounded pleasure at seeing the faces of men once more. The dogs, it was afterward learned, belonged to the old man of the island, who has lived there continuously and alone for twenty-six years. His sole companions being two dogs, a cat and about twenty thousand sheep, which he is his duty to look after. The sheep are owned by San Francisco company. He told his visitors that the dogs always exhibit these signs of delight upon the approach of callers, and also that they invariably try to jump overboard on shore when the visitors' craft leaves. They don't like the solitude as well as their master, or else they hinder after a change of diet.

Besides the domestic sheep there are also found on the island, while around the shores great numbers of fish, seals, etc., dispose themselves. The size and beauty of the shells found on the shores are most extraordinary. All colors and shapes of sea urchins and other varieties lie in heaps. Some of the specimens brought home by Mr. Cheatham are most beautiful.

Another gentleman of the party secured a couple of very handsome leopard seal skins.

Of the many strange discoveries made by the party on the island, which seemed to be a land of wonders, none was so startling as their coming suddenly upon a level sort of plain, which was strewn with the skeletons of about five hundred human beings. They scattered about in a promiscuous manner, which suggests that the whole lot must have been suddenly and once killed. The place where they came upon them was a veritable "valley of bones."

The island itself is about twenty-eight miles long, and has a width of several miles. There are no trees of any sort to be found, and the island is largely composed of sand, gravel or beach. There is no spring water on the island, that very necessary item being supplied from a large natural basin in which sufficient rain is caught to supply the need in that line.

Mr. Cheatham was very enthusiastic over what he saw and declared that nothing would please him more than to spend several months exploring this terra incognita.

How to Keep Older Sweet.

The best and only method of preventing formation in early-made cider is by bottling in one hundred and seventy-five degrees Fahrenheit and placing in an air-tight cork and sealing up with a cork, following the usual method of carrying fruit. Cider put up by this process I have kept through the second summer as sweet as when it ran from the press. The objection as to this method is that it changes the somewhat the flavor of the cider; but when opened for use it forms just as does canned fruit. A method of preserving late-made cider is to add some preservative substance to the cider, which has its active ingredients either sulphur or calcium, and the latter being the most used, one ounce of the acid to thirty-two gallons of cider being the rule.
